

Collecting The Van Gogh Masterpieces

by John F. Dunn

With the works of even secondary artists soaring into the millions, it is time to remind art lovers that one of the many wonderful topics that stamp collectors enjoy on a budget revolves around works of art. The approaches are varied: history of art, particular themes, specific artists, museums, and more.

For this issue focusing on Vincent Van Gogh and his masterpieces, I turned to the website of the Inter-Governmental Corporation of New York and selected a few of the many issues that are currently available—and affordable there—keeping in mind that the USPS does not include non-U.S. artists or their works in their stamp programs.

While I selected a few for presentation here, there are more than 2,500 more stamps, sets and souvenir sheets to enjoy viewing and acquiring on the IGPC website, www.igpc.com.

You can also access many other topics on that website or in the IGPC section under Postal Administrations on this www.stampnewsnow.com website.
